

Scottish Council for
Development and Industry

PRESS RELEASE

29 June 2011

Embargo: None

SCDI Comment on Christie Commission

Commenting on the launch of today's report from the Commission on the Future Delivery of Public Services, SCDI Chief Executive, Dr Lesley Sawers said:

"SCDI believes that Scotland's public services must deliver on the nation's triple-track ambitions of increasing economic growth, social well-being and environmental sustainability. We welcome the Commission's acceptance of this position.

"We strongly welcome the Commission's conclusion that public services should be independently benchmarked. Comparisons should not only be with other public services in Scotland, but comparable services internationally. We also welcome the focus on prevention and outcomes-based public services and agree that priority outcomes should be ring-fenced rather than departmental budgets.

"Given cost-pressures on public services, demographic changes and increasing public expectations, Scotland now needs real debate on what the long-term priorities are and the best way of delivering them to create successful communities and support a strong economy.

"We look forward to taking this forward as part of an open partnership between the Scottish Government, Scottish business and civic Scotland which supports innovation, collaborates and creates public services which support an economically successful, sustainable and more equitable nation."

ENDS

Notes to editors

SCDI is Scotland's leading economic development organisation representing 1,200 companies, SMEs, public sector bodies, charities, trade unions and faith groups.

For further information, please contact Gareth Williams, Head of Policy on 07917 103 997.

PRESS RELEASE

Scottish Council for
Development and Industry

PRESS RELEASE

29 June 2011

Embargo: None

SCDI Comment on Christie Commission

Commenting on the launch of today's report from the Commission on the Future Delivery of Public Services, SCDI Chief Executive, Dr Lesley Sawers said:

"SCDI believes that Scotland's public services must deliver on the nation's triple-track ambitions of increasing economic growth, social well-being and environmental sustainability. We welcome the Commission's acceptance of this position.

"We strongly welcome the Commission's conclusion that public services should be independently benchmarked. Comparisons should not only be with other public services in Scotland, but comparable services internationally. We also welcome the focus on prevention and outcomes-based public services and agree that priority outcomes should be ring-fenced rather than departmental budgets.

"Given cost-pressures on public services, demographic changes and increasing public expectations, Scotland now needs real debate on what the long-term priorities are and the best way of delivering them to create successful communities and support a strong economy.

"We look forward to taking this forward as part of an open partnership between the Scottish Government, Scottish business and civic Scotland which supports innovation, collaborates and creates public services which support an economically successful, sustainable and more equitable nation."

ENDS

Notes to editors

SCDI is Scotland's leading economic development organisation representing 1,200 companies, SMEs, public sector bodies, charities, trade unions and faith groups.

For further information, please contact Gareth Williams, Head of Policy on 07917 103 997.

PRESS RELEASE

Scottish Council for
Development and Industry

PRESS RELEASE

29 June 2011

Embargo: None

SCDI Comment on Christie Commission

Commenting on the launch of today's report from the Commission on the Future Delivery of Public Services, SCDI Chief Executive, Dr Lesley Sawers said:

"SCDI believes that Scotland's public services must deliver on the nation's triple-track ambitions of increasing economic growth, social well-being and environmental sustainability. We welcome the Commission's acceptance of this position.

"We strongly welcome the Commission's conclusion that public services should be independently benchmarked. Comparisons should not only be with other public services in Scotland, but comparable services internationally. We also welcome the focus on prevention and outcomes-based public services and agree that priority outcomes should be ring-fenced rather than departmental budgets.

"Given cost-pressures on public services, demographic changes and increasing public expectations, Scotland now needs real debate on what the long-term priorities are and the best way of delivering them to create successful communities and support a strong economy.

"We look forward to taking this forward as part of an open partnership between the Scottish Government, Scottish business and civic Scotland which supports innovation, collaborates and creates public services which support an economically successful, sustainable and more equitable nation."

ENDS

Notes to editors

SCDI is Scotland's leading economic development organisation representing 1,200 companies, SMEs, public sector bodies, charities, trade unions and faith groups.

For further information, please contact Gareth Williams, Head of Policy on 07917 103 997.

PRESS RELEASE

Scottish Council for
Development and Industry

PRESS RELEASE

29 June 2011

Embargo: None

SCDI Comment on Christie Commission

Commenting on the launch of today's report from the Commission on the Future Delivery of Public Services, SCDI Chief Executive, Dr Lesley Sawers said:

"SCDI believes that Scotland's public services must deliver on the nation's triple-track ambitions of increasing economic growth, social well-being and environmental sustainability. We welcome the Commission's acceptance of this position.

"We strongly welcome the Commission's conclusion that public services should be independently benchmarked. Comparisons should not only be with other public services in Scotland, but comparable services internationally. We also welcome the focus on prevention and outcomes-based public services and agree that priority outcomes should be ring-fenced rather than departmental budgets.

"Given cost-pressures on public services, demographic changes and increasing public expectations, Scotland now needs real debate on what the long-term priorities are and the best way of delivering them to create successful communities and support a strong economy.

"We look forward to taking this forward as part of an open partnership between the Scottish Government, Scottish business and civic Scotland which supports innovation, collaborates and creates public services which support an economically successful, sustainable and more equitable nation."

ENDS

Notes to editors

SCDI is Scotland's leading economic development organisation representing 1,200 companies, SMEs, public sector bodies, charities, trade unions and faith groups.

For further information, please contact Gareth Williams, Head of Policy on 07917 103 997.

PRESS RELEASE

Scottish Council for
Development and Industry

PRESS RELEASE

29 June 2011

Embargo: None

SCDI Comment on Christie Commission

Commenting on the launch of today's report from the Commission on the Future Delivery of Public Services, SCDI Chief Executive, Dr Lesley Sawers said:

"SCDI believes that Scotland's public services must deliver on the nation's triple-track ambitions of increasing economic growth, social well-being and environmental sustainability. We welcome the Commission's acceptance of this position.

"We strongly welcome the Commission's conclusion that public services should be independently benchmarked. Comparisons should not only be with other public services in Scotland, but comparable services internationally. We also welcome the focus on prevention and outcomes-based public services and agree that priority outcomes should be ring-fenced rather than departmental budgets.

"Given cost-pressures on public services, demographic changes and increasing public expectations, Scotland now needs real debate on what the long-term priorities are and the best way of delivering them to create successful communities and support a strong economy.

"We look forward to taking this forward as part of an open partnership between the Scottish Government, Scottish business and civic Scotland which supports innovation, collaborates and creates public services which support an economically successful, sustainable and more equitable nation."

ENDS

Notes to editors

SCDI is Scotland's leading economic development organisation representing 1,200 companies, SMEs, public sector bodies, charities, trade unions and faith groups.

For further information, please contact Gareth Williams, Head of Policy on 07917 103 997.

PRESS RELEASE

Scottish Council for
Development and Industry

PRESS RELEASE

29 June 2011

Embargo: None

SCDI Comment on Christie Commission

Commenting on the launch of today's report from the Commission on the Future Delivery of Public Services, SCDI Chief Executive, Dr Lesley Sawers said:

"SCDI believes that Scotland's public services must deliver on the nation's triple-track ambitions of increasing economic growth, social well-being and environmental sustainability. We welcome the Commission's acceptance of this position.

"We strongly welcome the Commission's conclusion that public services should be independently benchmarked. Comparisons should not only be with other public services in Scotland, but comparable services internationally. We also welcome the focus on prevention and outcomes-based public services and agree that priority outcomes should be ring-fenced rather than departmental budgets.

"Given cost-pressures on public services, demographic changes and increasing public expectations, Scotland now needs real debate on what the long-term priorities are and the best way of delivering them to create successful communities and support a strong economy.

"We look forward to taking this forward as part of an open partnership between the Scottish Government, Scottish business and civic Scotland which supports innovation, collaborates and creates public services which support an economically successful, sustainable and more equitable nation."

ENDS

Notes to editors

SCDI is Scotland's leading economic development organisation representing 1,200 companies, SMEs, public sector bodies, charities, trade unions and faith groups.

For further information, please contact Gareth Williams, Head of Policy on 07917 103 997.

PRESS RELEASE

Scottish Council for
Development and Industry

PRESS RELEASE

29 June 2011

Embargo: None

SCDI Comment on Christie Commission

Commenting on the launch of today's report from the Commission on the Future Delivery of Public Services, SCDI Chief Executive, Dr Lesley Sawers said:

"SCDI believes that Scotland's public services must deliver on the nation's triple-track ambitions of increasing economic growth, social well-being and environmental sustainability. We welcome the Commission's acceptance of this position.

"We strongly welcome the Commission's conclusion that public services should be independently benchmarked. Comparisons should not only be with other public services in Scotland, but comparable services internationally. We also welcome the focus on prevention and outcomes-based public services and agree that priority outcomes should be ring-fenced rather than departmental budgets.

"Given cost-pressures on public services, demographic changes and increasing public expectations, Scotland now needs real debate on what the long-term priorities are and the best way of delivering them to create successful communities and support a strong economy.

"We look forward to taking this forward as part of an open partnership between the Scottish Government, Scottish business and civic Scotland which supports innovation, collaborates and creates public services which support an economically successful, sustainable and more equitable nation."

ENDS

Notes to editors

SCDI is Scotland's leading economic development organisation representing 1,200 companies, SMEs, public sector bodies, charities, trade unions and faith groups.

For further information, please contact Gareth Williams, Head of Policy on 07917 103 997.

PRESS RELEASE

Scottish Council for
Development and Industry

PRESS RELEASE

29 June 2011

Embargo: None

SCDI Comment on Christie Commission

Commenting on the launch of today's report from the Commission on the Future Delivery of Public Services, SCDI Chief Executive, Dr Lesley Sawers said:

"SCDI believes that Scotland's public services must deliver on the nation's triple-track ambitions of increasing economic growth, social well-being and environmental sustainability. We welcome the Commission's acceptance of this position.

"We strongly welcome the Commission's conclusion that public services should be independently benchmarked. Comparisons should not only be with other public services in Scotland, but comparable services internationally. We also welcome the focus on prevention and outcomes-based public services and agree that priority outcomes should be ring-fenced rather than departmental budgets.

"Given cost-pressures on public services, demographic changes and increasing public expectations, Scotland now needs real debate on what the long-term priorities are and the best way of delivering them to create successful communities and support a strong economy.

"We look forward to taking this forward as part of an open partnership between the Scottish Government, Scottish business and civic Scotland which supports innovation, collaborates and creates public services which support an economically successful, sustainable and more equitable nation."

ENDS

Notes to editors

SCDI is Scotland's leading economic development organisation representing 1,200 companies, SMEs, public sector bodies, charities, trade unions and faith groups.

For further information, please contact Gareth Williams, Head of Policy on 07917 103 997.

PRESS RELEASE

Scottish Council for
Development and Industry

PRESS RELEASE

29 June 2011

Embargo: None

SCDI Comment on Christie Commission

Commenting on the launch of today's report from the Commission on the Future Delivery of Public Services, SCDI Chief Executive, Dr Lesley Sawers said:

"SCDI believes that Scotland's public services must deliver on the nation's triple-track ambitions of increasing economic growth, social well-being and environmental sustainability. We welcome the Commission's acceptance of this position.

"We strongly welcome the Commission's conclusion that public services should be independently benchmarked. Comparisons should not only be with other public services in Scotland, but comparable services internationally. We also welcome the focus on prevention and outcomes-based public services and agree that priority outcomes should be ring-fenced rather than departmental budgets.

"Given cost-pressures on public services, demographic changes and increasing public expectations, Scotland now needs real debate on what the long-term priorities are and the best way of delivering them to create successful communities and support a strong economy.

"We look forward to taking this forward as part of an open partnership between the Scottish Government, Scottish business and civic Scotland which supports innovation, collaborates and creates public services which support an economically successful, sustainable and more equitable nation."

ENDS

Notes to editors

SCDI is Scotland's leading economic development organisation representing 1,200 companies, SMEs, public sector bodies, charities, trade unions and faith groups.

For further information, please contact Gareth Williams, Head of Policy on 07917 103 997.

PRESS RELEASE

Scottish Council for
Development and Industry

PRESS RELEASE

29 June 2011

Embargo: None

SCDI Comment on Christie Commission

Commenting on the launch of today's report from the Commission on the Future Delivery of Public Services, SCDI Chief Executive, Dr Lesley Sawers said:

"SCDI believes that Scotland's public services must deliver on the nation's triple-track ambitions of increasing economic growth, social well-being and environmental sustainability. We welcome the Commission's acceptance of this position.

"We strongly welcome the Commission's conclusion that public services should be independently benchmarked. Comparisons should not only be with other public services in Scotland, but comparable services internationally. We also welcome the focus on prevention and outcomes-based public services and agree that priority outcomes should be ring-fenced rather than departmental budgets.

"Given cost-pressures on public services, demographic changes and increasing public expectations, Scotland now needs real debate on what the long-term priorities are and the best way of delivering them to create successful communities and support a strong economy.

"We look forward to taking this forward as part of an open partnership between the Scottish Government, Scottish business and civic Scotland which supports innovation, collaborates and creates public services which support an economically successful, sustainable and more equitable nation."

ENDS

Notes to editors

SCDI is Scotland's leading economic development organisation representing 1,200 companies, SMEs, public sector bodies, charities, trade unions and faith groups.

For further information, please contact Gareth Williams, Head of Policy on 07917 103 997.

PRESS RELEASE